The financial advice process

We recognise that the objectives and personal circumstances of each client are different.

Where we provide personal advice, we will listen to you to understand your objectives and circumstances. We will also ask questions to make sure we provide advice which is in your best interests.

When we first provide personal financial advice you will receive a Statement of Advice. This document will explain the basis for our advice, why the advice is appropriate for your circumstances, the main risks associated with the advice, the cost to you of implementing the advice, the benefits we receive and whether there are any associations or relationships which may influence the advice.

FINANCIAL SERVICES GUIDE

For administration platforms, managed funds and personal risk insurance products we will provide you with a Product Disclosure Statement. This contains information to help you understand the product being recommended.

At all times you are able to contact us and ask questions about our advice and the products we recommend.

You can provide instructions to us in writing, via phone or via email. In some cases, we may require you to provide signed instructions.

We may provide further advice to you based on changes in your circumstances, the law, the economy, investment markets or products. That further advice will be documented in either a Statement of Advice or a Record of Advice depending on the circumstances.

You can request a copy of our advice documents at any time up to 7 years after the advice is provided.
